

So much to do and so little time! There are so many things to do each day that sometimes I feel like I'm backing up! If you share this frustrating feeling let me suggest the following to help you get it all accomplished.

Organize each day with the following:

1. Bible Study. It makes no difference whether you do it in the morning, during the day, or evening, but make time to spend in quiet solitude each day.
2. Prayer. To pray without ceasing (1Th. 5:17) means saying little, specific prayers, all day long. Make prayer part of your daily routine.
3. Work. Some of you have a job outside the home, some work inside. This will probably be the biggest time grabber of your life. Organize and prioritize what you need to accomplish. If possible, start with the most difficult or biggest job first and you will be surprised, with a little organization, how much you can accomplish.
4. Family. Family is so important you cannot afford to leave them out of your life, even for a single day. If you can only see your family at supper, make supper a focal point of communication and encouragement. Listen while you eat to know everything that is going on in the lives of your spouse and children.
5. Church (the brethren). Fellow Christians need encouragement throughout the week. A quick phone call, e-mail, or card will speak volumes of encouragement. Try to make every assembly of the saints and use that time as a sponge with God's word, and as a spray with encouragement to others.

See you Sunday!
